Veronique Sellies – Saggar Firing

As a child, Veronique lived in the south of France and in the Middle East and her love of pottery reconnected her with her childhood memories of rich warm colours used in every possible way and pottery for every day life. Her Saggar Fired works largely represent the colours of her youth - houses rendered with ochre oxides, rich tapestry and copper of the Middle East. Her work as a civil drafter has influenced her pottery, which is very precise and balanced. She started ceramics 10 years ago at the Canberra Pottery Society, then studied at ANU, Hornsby TAFE and Brookvale. She has sold her work in France and to American Art collectors.
